LOVE LIKE GRAVITY DEFIES GRAVITY WITH ADRENALINE VIDEO RELEASE

November 15, 2011 (Springdale, AR) Christian rock band, Love Like Gravity, is currently experiencing their own adrenaline rush with the release of their official music video, “Adrenaline”. Soon to follow is “Adrenaline”, the movie, with an anticipated release in 2012 starring Michael Rosander, a great actor and mind-blowing magician in his own right.

Joseph Q. Simpkins, the Producer/Co-Director of the music video and movie, worked as a Special Effects Technician on television series including The X-Files, Nash Bridges, and Dawson's Creek as well as several movies including Virus, The General's Daughter, and many others. Joseph is also known as an actor and writer, but his most recent accomplishments include forming Living Water Films, a production company that creates edgy content with the intent of reaching the unreachable. Alex Chatfield is co-directing the movie with Simpkins. Living Water Films has produced the award-winning films Fatal Flaw and The Choice. These are two great films you must see. Simpkins said, "Our work is an outreach reflecting Christ to the secular world. The core Christian message of Adrenaline the movie is that we tend to fill that emptiness inside us with worldly Adrenaline fixes that never satisfy when that emptiness was designed to be filled with Christ who always satisfies."

Simpkins continued, "I heard Adrenaline by Love Like Gravity on our local radio station, 88.5 The Edge, and really liked it. I had written an 80's period script about street racing and cruising and wrote in 80's rock music I hoped to use. I had thoughts about incorporating contemporary Christian rock music that fit the genre and Adrenaline was perfect. The biggest struggle I was facing with the story was in conveying a message that car enthusiasts could walk away with and would make sense to them. Adrenaline was the answer. Not only was the sound right but the lyrics spelled out the core message I sought."

When asked what it was like to work with the band, Simpkins added, "We couldn't have asked for a better experience. What really impressed me working with LLG was their humility and honesty which reflected the truth and integrity in their music and who they are and who they are reaching out to which is exactly what Jesus would expect."

Love Like Gravity has played to thousands as a headlining artist while also sharing tickets with such top industry artists as Kutless, Chasen, RED, Skillet, Pillar, Casting Crowns, Disciple and Decyfer Down at events and festivals up and down the East Coast. Now, along with the video, LLG's breakout release with producers Tony Palacios and Jim Cooper (Decyfer Down, Building 429, High Flight Society, etc.) has raised the bar even higher! With Adrenaline and other hits climbing the Billboard Christian Rock charts, Love Like Gravity is gearing up to greet new-found opportunities with a God inspired purpose. For an adrenaline rush of your own, you have to see these guys in person when they play in your area.
